FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY (FOUO)
The Army’s Career Skills Program (CSP) provides Soldiers the opportunity to participate in skills training, during their transition period, in order to improve their civilian employment options. CSPs are conducted while Soldiers are still on active duty.

CSPs provide networking and connecting functions essential to successful employment and rewarding careers.

Supports the Veterans Opportunities to Work (VOW) to Hire Heroes Act of 2011. The Army partners with industry employers, community leaders, and training providers to offer CSPs.

Army installations develop CSP opportunities with civilian and government agencies.

No wages are paid to Soldiers while attending a CSP.

Soldiers enrolled in a CSP continue to earn military pay, health care, and benefits while training with a company for their next career.

“Identifiable and transferable skills
Reliable work ethic
Loyalty to team
Motivated productivity
Leadership”

CSPs allow employers to teach transitioning Soldiers civilian career skills through:

- Apprenticeships
- Internships
- On-the-Job Training (OJT)
- Employment Skills Training
- Job Shadowing

“These young military people bring skills, work ethic, and this is the kind of employee the industry needs today.”

-Vice President of a CSP Partner

“It’s a tough cut to get into the military. Only 29% of American youth are eligible to serve.

Target your recruiting efforts towards the best – America’s Soldier.
